Social Session of Business Men's Association.

INFORMAL SPEECHES

MEMBERS AND FRIENDS THE GUESTS OF COL. STAPLES.

Addresses by the Host, Commissioners Macfarland and West, Representative Patterson and Others.

The members of the Washington Business Men's Association and a number of their friends gathered at the Riggs House last evening and enjoyed the hospitality of Col. O. G. Staples, a member of the association. The occasion should have been the regular monthly business assemblage of the association, but in view of Col. Staples' invitation business matters were dispensed with and a purely informal meeting was held. There was no set program, but short, extemporaneous speeches were made by members and guests present at such intervals during the evening as "the spirit moved" President Raymond to call upon them. Among those who responded to the call of the presiding officer were: Commissioner Henry B. F. Macfarland, Commissioner Henry L. West, Representative Patterson of Pennsylvania, Major Sylvester, ex-Gov. Hoyt of Wyoming, Col. Staples, Conrad Syme, Barry Bulkley and others.

The association assembled in one of the parlors of the Riggs House shortly after 8 o'clock. President Raymond, after stating at 8th and G streets southeast yesterday that it had been decided to dispense with afternoon. He was purchasing a paper from the usual business, said those present would have an opportunity to mingle together and get better acquainted with each other. Mr. Raymond then called upon Barry Bulkley to introduce Commissioner Macfarland. Mr. Bulkley spoke in high terms of the regard and esteem in which the president of the board of District Commissioners is held by the members of the association and of the people of the District, and asked that official to speak a few words to the gath-

Mr. Macfarland said he had come to the meeting at the invitation of Col. Staples not to speak, but to be spoken to. He expressed his appreciation of the co-operation extended to him as Commissioner by the members of the Business Men's Association and by the people of the District.

Government of Public Opinion.

"The District government is pre-eminently a government of public opinion," contipued Mr. Macfarland. "Within this jurisdiction public opinion acts directly upon legislation to a degree perhaps not found in any other place. Whenever the people of the District act as one man on any one thing they come pretty near getting it sooner or later. They may be obliged to wait at times, but they usually get what they desire when they work unanimously. Among the valuable agencies for molding this public opinion in the District is the Business Men's Association. The efforts of your representatives at the District building, at the Capitol and throughout the city generally have been a great help to the Commissioners, and the results obtained from congressional action have been due in a great measure to the work of the Business Men's Association.

"I hope in the coming year that a great deal of improvement in Washington may I believe we will see be accomplished. many projects of improvement either com-pleted or well under way. I think we will see the water flowing clear and pure from filtration plant within a we will see the new municipal building ris-ing on the site near the avenue, without the Police Court or other offices in it. "The people of the District who have long hoped for the development and beautifica-tion of the national capital have every rea-son to expect that their brightest hopes will be fulfilled. The capital of the nation is fixed in Washington for all time, and nothing can ever effect a change, except for the better. I think nearly all of us will live to see Washington the most beautiful capital in the world, and I believe every man here is doing his full share in helping to accomplish that purpose, and that back of all personal considerations there is the deep and strong desire in the hearts of all the business men of Washington for the development and beautification of the capital

At the close of his remarks, by a stand ing vote, the association unanimously elect-ed Commissioner Macfarland an honorary member of the organization.

Closer Acquaintance Desirable. Representative Patterson was next called upon by Mr. Raymond. Mr. Patterson expressed the belief that it would be a wise pelicy for the members of the Business Men's Association and other similar organizations in the city to come into closer contact with the members of Congress; to invite them to meet more frequently in friendly informal gatherings, at which set speeches would be barred. He spoke of his pleasure at being present, and compliment-ed the association on its public spirit and active interest in the affairs of the city outside of the personal concerns.

At the request of the president, Conrad Syme introduced Col. Staples, the host of the evening. Col. Staples spoke in high terms of the District Commissioners, and said he had always found that whenever he had called on the president of the board with other representatives of the association he was always sure of courteous treat-ment and consideration, whether the Comnissioner saw fit to grant the request or

"There are two reasons why we like men," said Col. Staples; "one is because we don't know them, and the other because we do know them. It is a good idea for the members of this association to meet at in-formal gatherings and get acquainted and ltivate regard for each other. Following a short speech by Conrad Syme, the guests adjourned to the large banquet hall, where an excellent buffet supper was served, and the members engaged in con-

Commissioner West's Speech

During the festivities in the dining room Commissioner West and Major Sylvester arrived, and Mr. West was called upon for a speech. In response he stated that he had the good fortune to be a member advertisements will be received there at of the association before he became District Commissioner, and that his relations with the organization had been as pleasant as a private citizen as they have been as an official of the District.
"I wish to take this occasion," said Mr.

West, "to express my gratification over the District appropriation bill as just re-ported to the Senate. Not everything we need his been given us, perhaps, but it is a most liberal budget. If we were given everything we could think of, I suppose there would still be things needed of which we did not think. All things, I believe, will come to us in time."

Mr. West complimented the association on its efforts in behalf of the development of the city, and pledged his aid to any or-gan zation which works for the advance-ment of the interests of the national cap-

He told several hu-morous stories, and in concluding said the Commissioners should receive the thanks of the citizens for their efforts to secure "increased pay for a poorly paid police men and citizens should not make indis-criminate attacks upon semi-public cor-porations because of their faults, but rather the citizens should seek to have the faults corrected in a spirit of kindly considera-tion. Local enterprise, he said, should be fostered, not discouraged. Because a semi-public corporation does not give satisfactory service in some particulars, he said, is not justification for making indiscriminate attacks upon the whole system operated by the company. He urged con-centration of effort on the part of citizens to gain the ends they desired. The meeting lasted until about 11 o'clock and the spirit of good fellowship pervaded
